If You Contact Me Through My Website

If you contact me via the Website you can reasonably and confidently expect that I will not use your personal information for any purpose other than to fulfil your request for information about my coaching services. It will not be used for any other reason.

If you contact me via the Website you can reasonably and confidently expect that your personal information will be held securely and confidentially and will not be provided to any third party for any reason.

If You Visit My Website

I use website analytics to track visits to my website. I use this information to measure the performance of my website. The only information I collect via these analytics are the total number of visits within certain time frames, pages viewed and broad geographical information relating to visitors to the website. These analytics cannot track the identity of any individual visitor or provide other personal information about them.

If You Engage Me as Your Coach

As your coach, I will hold your personal information, including any information that might identify you, in strict confidence. The content of our discussions is also held in strict confidence, except in very rare circumstances. If you require further information, please contact me.

If you have any questions or concerns relating to your privacy, please feel free to contact me.
